costinas holidays he has been more or less troubled with the disease, and for the last two weeks has been unable to go out, or even to leave his room, though he was not confined to his bed. His physician did not anticipate that he would suc cumb to this attack, but expected to bring him through. Yesterday, however, he be came worse, and about 2 o'clock he lapsed into unconsciousness, from which he failed to rally, finally passing away about 6 o'clock. Mrs. Harmer and all his surviving family were present at his bedside when the supreme moment came.

ne entered his mercantile career before he attained his majority, and in a few years had established himself at the head of a large shoe manufacturing concern.

In 1856 he began his public career, and, after an earnest canvass, was elected a member of city councils, where he served four years. In 1869, in a time of great bolitical excitement, with three candidates in the field, he was nominated by the people's party, the successors of the oid whigs, for recorder of deeds of Philadelphia, and was elected by a majority of 2.783 votes over both competitors. 'About the same time he was appointed by the citizens' committee to collect funds in the twenty-second ward for the raising of troops, to which funds he contributed liberally himself. He was a delegate in the same year to the national republican convention in Chicago. In 1870 Mr. Harmer was elected to Congress by a big majority, and with the exception of one term has steadily represented his district since. He has always been a warm friend of President McKinley, the friendship beginning when the President was representative from Ohio.

On the District Committee.

Mr. Harmer has been a conspleuous figure in the House of Representatives for many years. He served his first term in the Forty-fourth. He represented the fifth district, which comprises eight wards in the city of Philadelphia. At the time of his death he was the senior member, in point of service, in the House, the "father of the House," as it is usually termed, who administers the oath of office to the Speaker upon his election.

In this connection it is a notable fact that the "father of the House," has hailed from Philadelphia for many years kelly, and ministers the oath of office to the Speaker upon his election.

Mr. Harmer has been one of the hardworking men of the House, making his personality felt in the committees and in the councils of the republican party, rather than in the debates. He was a most faithful and assidious attendant upon both the sessions of the House and the committees of which he was a member. It was his custom to come to Washington when the session opened and stay until adjournment of the Congress taking, no vacation in the meantime. He seldom missed a committee meeting, and no matter how early in the morning the meeting was called, the hour stated would find Mr. Harmer in his seat at the committee table, contentedly smoking a cigar and walting for the belated quorum to appear.

In recent years he served upon the committee on the District of Columbia, and at the time of his death was the ranking member. He took great interest in all legislation relating to steam and street rallway corporations. He was identified with several railroad enterprises in Pennsylvania and was engaged upon an extensive scale in mining and land operations.

"The long and faithful services of Mr. Harmer as an efficient member of this committee deserve something more than passing notice. His colleagues on the committee entertained the highest respect for Mr. Harmer in their associations with him. They always found him to be a high-minded gentleman, earnest in the discharge of his duties, fearless in action, and a gentleman of the highest character. The committee appreciate the fact that they will miss him in their deliberations, for they have always found him to be a man of excellent judgment, uninfluenced by anything excepting the discharge of his duty fearlessly as he saw it, a man who never yielded to any sentiment, and anxious to serve his country in an homorable and high-minded manner. Those having business relations with him could always rely upon his judgment, because of his disinterestedness and determination to be right.

This mod-erate total was due to the fact, it is stated, that greater safeguards were placed around the polls yesterday, each voter being re-quired to give his name and place of resi-dence before his ballot was accepted. There were three judges or registrars at each polling place, and when the polls were closed they began the work of counting the votes.

Session of Returning Board When this was completed the boxes and the sheets containing the results of the count were sent to the office of Judge John B. Cotton, chairman of the election board which had control of the primaries, and were examined by a returning board comwere examined by a returning board com-posed of Mr. Chapin Brown, president of the Bar Association; Mr. Aaron Bradshaw and Mr. Leo Simmons, the latter being chosen to serve by the election board in place of Mr. W. There were minor irregularities found in several districts and from the eighteenth the only return was the ballot box filled with ballots. All the candidates, however, agreed that the ballots should be counted by the returning board, and this was done. When the examination was concluded the result showed 10,197 votes for Jones, 10,198 for Chase, 3,886 for Reyburn, 3,827 for Lee, 30 for Thomas, 10,250 for Emmons, 10,317 for Petrson, 3,860 for Hensey and 3,717 for Perry, the majorities of the victors thus appproximating about 7,000 votes.

The two latter signed today the necessary cer-tificates, showing the election of Jones and Chase as delegates and Emmons and Peter-son as alternates, and as the national com-mittee in creating the board provided that a majority of its members should decide all questions the threatened contest will not questions the threatened contest will not in the minds of leaders in local republican ranks of all shades of opinion amount to anything.

"Our grocer called my lattention one day to Postum Cereal Coffee. This was about three years ago. I immediately quit the use of coffee and took up Postum, having it prepared properly. The change produced a remarkable result. In a week or two I was able to leave off the 11 o'clock lunch and take my dinner in the regular way with the rest of the family. My bloichy complexion disappeared and a natural complexion took its place. Now I can go from morning nutil adjact without a meal, if I desire, and no sheadache or inconvenience of any kind appears. I aleep sound as a baby, and my kidney trouble, which was more than serious, has entirely disappeared.

"A lady friend was recommended to try Postum, and a short time after, told me she was disgusted with it for it had no taste. I asked her if she boiled it carefully fifteen minutes after the real bubbling commenced. She said no, and in reply to another question, said she used only one heaping teaspoonful to the cup. I explained to her that she must use two heaping teaspoons to the cup and let it boil long enough. The next time I saw her she said she used Postum regularly and liked it very much indeed, and that it had made a great change in her health and the health of one or two members of her family."

the memory of the deceased the committee do now adjourn." Adjournment of the House. The death of Representative Harmer of Pennsylvania, the "father of the House," cast a deep gloom over the House of Representatives today. Although he was known to be in feeble health, his death came as a shock to his colleagues, by whom he was shock to his colleagues, by whom he was universally loved. Mr. Harmer was the oldest member of the House, both in length of service and in continuous service, and was therefore entitled to the distinction of the father of the House. As such it was his duty to swear in the incoming Specker at the opening of each Congress, and this was the occasion of his only appearance in the House this session. He made a special trip from Philadelphila at the opening of the session in December to administer the oath to Speaker Henderson. He was then in a feeble condition, and his eyesight was so poor that John T. Chauncey, one of the oldest employes of the House, was obliged to prompt him while he read the oath to Gen. Henderson. Mr. Harmer seldom addressed the House during his long term of service, but he was an active committee worker, popular personally, and he exercised much influence in a quiet way. His death makes Gen. Henry Bingham of Pennsylvania the "father of the House." He began his service in the Forty-sixth Congress, and has served continuously for twenty years. Both in length and priority of service Mr. Bingham is exceeded by Mr. Cannon of Illinois, chairman of the appropriations committee, who was first elected to the Forty-third Congress, and who is serving his thirteenth term, but his term was not continuous, he having failed of reelection in the Fity-second Congress. universally loved. Mr. Harmer was the was not continuous, he having failed of re-election in the Fifty-second Congress.

In point of priority of service Mr. Grow of Pennsylvania, the venerable ex-Speaker, is the oldest member. He first came to Congress in 1851, but there was a long hiatus in his service from 1863 to 1805. The distinction of "father of the House" belongs to him who has served longest in continuous service.

He died in the same community in which he was born and among the people who, for more than half a century loved and honored him personally and held him in such high esteem and confidence that only death could sever their close relations.

I desire, before offering the resolu-tions which I shall send to the clerk's desk, to group together the names of those four members whose record today belongs to the whole country and for whose memory the people of Philadelphia have especial affec-tion—Judge W. D. Kelley, who was elected to fifteen Congresses, and who served twenty-nine years; Mr. Charles O'Neill, who was elected to fifteen Congresses, and who twenty-nine years; Mr. Charles O'Neill, who was elected to fifteen Congresses, and who served twenty-nine years; Mr. Samuel J. Randall, who was elected to fourteen Congresses, and who served twenty-seven years, and our colleague just deceased, Mr. Harmer, who likewise was elected to fourteen Congresses and served twenty-seven years—in all 112 years of service given by these four distinguished dead—a record unparalleled in the history of the country."

To Attend the Funeral.

At the conclusion of his remarks, Mr. Bingham offered the customary resolutions of regret and for the appointment of a committee of fifteen to attend the funeral. The Speaker appointed the following commit ee: Messrs. Bingham, Adams, McAleer, tee: Messrs. Bingham, Adams, McAleer, Dalzell, Broslus, Wanger and Butler of Pennsylvania, Ketcham (N. Y.), McCleary (Minn.), Babcock (Wis.), Richardson (Tenn.), Catchings (Miss.), Terry (Ark.) and Fitzgerald (Mass.).

Friday morning in two parlors over the Pennsylvania railroad, and proceed to Philadelphia, where the funeral will be held at 12 o'clock. The party will be in charge of Col. Casson, the sergeant-at-arms of the House, in person, and will return Friday night.

Proposals for constructing an assembly hall on the grounds of the Boys' Reform School of the District were opened at the District building today. The current District appropriation act provides the sum of $9,750 for the purpose, but the lowest bid received was just $1,540 more than the amount appropriated. The bids received were as follows: John Hughes, jr., of Bal-timore, Md., $13,286; Pavarini & Greer, $11.463.65, and Burgess & Parsons, $11,230.

In view of the failure of the Commissioners to receive satisfactory bids today, it is understood that they will ask Congress to provide such an additional amount as will permit the construction of the building.
